LAW REPORT.

SUPERIOR COURT. SLAVE MANUMERSION.—A deed of manumission, ox-cuted by Jarob Coffman, of East Baton Rouge, La, in behalf of the children of a young mulafto we-nam, was presented for record in Koom No. 1 of this Court. Mr. Gitchell presented the application to the Court.

Judge Storer - Does the deed not include the mother?

The mother here replied that she did not desire her freedom at the present; that she owed her mester three hundred dollars yet, and would return and remain in his service, as heretofore, until that was raid. paid.

Judge Storer-Very apright and honest. Such con-paid.

Judge Storer-Very apright and honest. Such conduct is deserving of encouragement.

The Judge then directed the children to be brought before him, and remarked that some of them were certainly white.

One little girl, Adeline, three years of age, had long, light hair, which flowed in handsome ringiets around her fair little neck, while her checks had a fair and delicate has.

Judge Storer-Just think of that child being a slave! A child as white as three-fourths of the people in this city!

Two little girls, one younger than this child, and one older, were also very fair. The cidest, a boy ten years of age, was rather of a darker complection, but had brown hair, and little resemblance to the negro.

It was stated that the owner bought the mother and the two cidest children in 1832 for $1,232.

The certificates of emancipation were made out for the children, and they were declared legally emancipated and set free.

The Honestead Exemption Law,—Peter Riley vs.

N. Long and others, Before Judge Storer. The Court said that a bill had been filed in this case to compel the specific performance of a contract for the said of a house and lot in Cincinnati. The Court had already decreed in favor of the plaintiff, but an application was now made for a new trial.

Two questions were presented: First, whether the contract was sufficiently certain so as to take the take without the statute of frauds and perjuries. It was rather obscurely worded; but taken as a whole, and in connection with the defendant's answer, there was enough to authorize the decree which had been the court, for the first lime, was called to decide it. The Court, for the first lime, was called to decide it. The was enough rs. dered.

The next question was an important one; and the next question was an important one; and the property was said for $1,500, and it is averred in the answer that the defendant's wife objected to the sail and she had also field her answer; in which she as said she had also field her answer; in which she resists that the sail ought not to be permitted, because in the sail of the sa answer that the defendant's wife objected to the sale, and she had also filed her answer. In which she insists that the sale ought not to be permitted, because, under a statute passed some time during the session before the last, the Legislature forbade the sale by a before the last, the Legislature forbade the sale by a husband of any part of his property that was exempted by law from execution. This was assuming a very strong prerogative on the part of the Legislature, and must be construed to mean nothing more than the language of the statute would necessarily impart. Still the law was agood one, and the torn would sustain it for the protection of the wife to the full extent of the property exempted by law. Upon recurring to the statute by which a homestead is exempted, as well as personal property, they found that in either case the amount could not exceed $590. In this case the property was $1,500. The Court would decree that the title of the property was in the plaintif, but should hold that the proceeds of sale, to the extent allowed by the exemption law, should be preserved for the benefit of the wife.

No outry was made, the motion for a new trial having been continued until next week, on application of Mr. Cox. Mr. Applegate appeared on the other side.

Schooley w. McLaughlin. A very lengtheshod charge was delivered by Judge Spencer, to the jury in this case.

PROBATE COURT.

APPLICATION TO REMOVE A GUARDIAN. Judge Hilton was engaged about three or four hours in examining an application in the case of Michael Weaver sainst Ann Popaugh, for the removal of the latter as Guardian of Emma J. Weaver, a child between seven and eight years of age, the daughter of the plaintiff. The application was refused, and a further inquiry as to the guardianship of the other children was continued. Issanira.—A married female, of respectable German connections, was before the Court upon an inquiry in relation to her state of usind, which was alleged to have been somewhat uncound for a few years back, while her condition of late has become so agravated as to creat apprehensions on the part of her friends. It was stated that she attemated to cut ber threat, and also to obtain poison. She was sent to the asylum.

THE twenty-sixth anniversary of the estabishment of the Cincinnati Orphan Asylum, will be celebrated upon the grounds adjoining that institution, on Elm, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, Friday next.

"Coming thro' the Rye."-By far the tallest specimen of rye we have ever seen, was shown us by Mr. P. Cavagna, Saturday last. The stalk measured nine feet, and was raised on the farm of Mr. C., near Duck Creek, in this county.

Or Thursday next, the members of St. Patrick's Benevolent Society, go on a grand picnic excursion to Metropolitan Grove, twelve miles down the Ohio River. As the proceeds are to be used for charitable purposes, we hope to see a large number in attendance.

To-MORROW evening Mr. Robbins will give, at the request of many of our prominent citizens, his Fairy entertainment, entitled "Forest Festival," in Smith & Nixon's Hall. Mr. Robbins, we are assured, will have a crowded house. See advertisement. WE saw a party of indignant railroad excursionists standing upon one of the prominent corners, in Hamilton, Butler Co., last Saturday evening. Upon inquiry we ascertained that the cause of indignation was the sudden and mysterious disappearance of several "planks" from their platform. THE Rev. Mr. Goddard, successor to the Rev.

A LAD named Alfred Ray will have a hearing before Judge Lowe this morning, charged with firing the dwelling house of Mr. Frank, on Mount Auburn, last Saturday morning. Alfred, it appears, had been in the employ of Mr. F. until recently, when he was discharged on account of insults offered members of the family. Threats made by Frank to be revenged led to his arrest.

A BOY SAVED FROM DROWNING .- ANCTHER Noble Deed of Miles Greenwood .- On Saturday, between 11 and 12 o'clock, as a boy was playing on the bank of the canal near the premises of Miles Greenwood, Esq., he stumbled and fell into the water. A man observing the boy's danger-for he was unable to swimcautiously descended the bank, holding on to a stake with one hand, while he extended the other towards the drowning child-but in vain, as he could not reach the object of his solicitude. Presently six men were on the spot, not one of whom had the courage to plunge inbut Miles Greenwood, Esq., coming up, just at the last moment, he bravely plunged in, and seizing the poor, drowning boy, brought him to shore, and so saved him from a premature death. This is the third life so saved by the same honored citizen, and the twelfth which he has had the honor of rescuing from death, arising from fire and other causes. To live a useful, is to live an honorable life.

Assassination in St. Louis.-The St. Louis papers furnish a detailed narration of the brutal assassination, on Thursday morning last, of Joseph Charless, a reputable merchant of the city. It appears that his murderer met Charless on Market street, and accosted him abruptly, with these remarks: "You are the son of a --- that swore against my character," and drawing his revolver, shot two shots, one ball taking effect in his abdomen, the other in his left side after he had fallen. The victim reeled into a store, and was finally removed home, where he died the next morning.

The assassin made no effort to escape, but yielded to an arrest; in fact, the fury of the populace in a short while was so great, that the only place of safety for the prisoner was the jail, where he was placed, the mob for awhite clamoring to get at him and swing him by the neck on the spot where he drew the blood of one of the first citizens.

The murderer is Joseph W. Thornton, who was recently acquitted of a charge of robbery of over $18,000 from the Boatmen's Saving Institution, in which, at that time, four years ago, he was book-keeper. Charless, who was President of the State Bank of Missouri, was a witness at the trial, and testified that at various times since, Thornton had been depositing in his bank numerous bills, which singly and in parcels were so stained and dirty as to beget suspicion that they had been buried in the ground. In wanton revenge he committed this murder.

THE RAILBOAD CELEBRATION AT OXFORD. The celebration of the opening of the new Junction Railroad from Hamilton to Oxford last Saturday, was a most magnificent affair. Quite a respectable delegation from this city was in attendance. The citizens of Oxford received their guests in good old-fashioned barbaoue style, and all were perfectly convinced that Oxford was a great place, and her citizens a great people. Speeches were made, appropriate to the occasion, by Dr. Hall, President of the Miami University, Dr. Ford, and others. At the conclusion of the ceremonies. Dr. Ford, in behalf of the ladies of Oxford, presented each of the representatives of the Cincinnati press with a magnificent boquet.

Cincinnati is now united by railroad with Oxford. Further facilities have thus been of forded for business connection of this city, by speedy conveyance, with the fertile fields and glutted granaries of Butler county. A new tie unites the cultivated society of the rich Miami Valley and the people of the Queen City. Reciprocal influences will flow in deeper currents.

In an hour almost, a citizen of Cincinnati can meet his friends in Oxford, and in the. shades and retiracy of a country villa, forget the hum and turmoil of a city. Few places possess so many advantages. The site of Mismi University is connected in history with the establishment of the north-west territory. Thus early was education the paternal care of the general government, and the provident forethought of the distinguished colonizer of the Miami Valley.

The Institution was chartered by the Logislature half a century ago, and has been in operation since 1824. In all this interim, the elevating influences of education have been operating on the society grown up around this cherished Institution, which has graduated from its halls some of the most promising young men of Ohio.

How else can it be but desirable and matter of rejoicing, not only commercially but socially, to be ultimately associated with a lovely spot, where bright exemplars of plety and learning, have dwelt and diffused their light.

Oxford will be the Mecca of many a scholar who was under the instruction of a Hughes, a Sparrow, a Bishop, a McGuffey, a Junkins, a McMasters, a Stoddard and a Hall. We appreciate the connection as an additional channel for the circulation of news by our daily and weekly journals, and the "Citizen" must be liberal towards us, if it should learn very soon that the "Daily Press" has become an accustomed visitor at many a fireside of Oxford.

The news is of great importance, as an-nouncing the first important blow in Italy. The Allied and Austrian forces have met and the latter have oven defeated.

The battle tack place at Montebelle, a town of Austrian Italy.
The Austrians were 15,000 strong, and made the attack. After a severe engagement they were obliged to retreat, with a loss estimated nt two thousand.

The Allied Army lost seven hundred. A number of Austrians had been captured and taken prisoners to Marseilles.

The steamer Africa, from New York, had arrived at Liverpool.

SECOND DISPATCH.

There are two towns of Montebello in Italy as described in the gazetteers. The dispatch does not give the position of the one at which the battle took place. One of the Montebellos is a town of Austrian Italy, ten miles south-west of Vicenza, and is defended by two casties. The other is a village, twenty-three miles cust north-east of Allessandria, where the Austrians were defeated by the French in
